Historical Background

The mission of The Foundation for Community Encouragement Inc. (FCE) was “to encourage people in a fragmented world to discover new and better ways of being together.” Founded in December 1984 by Scott and Lily Peck and eleven others, the organization came into existence with the purpose of providing resources for the formation of communities by teaching principles through which they can be built and sustained.

Dr. M. Scott Peck began to envision an organization to assist the development of community shortly after the publication of his first book, The Road Less Traveled. The idea began with letters from his readers asking for advice and referrals to therapists in their local area. As the volume of correspondence increased, Dr. Peck realized that people had a deep need to share their lives in authentic and fulfilling relationships. Lecturing throughout the country, he was confronted with the deep need and lack of community. In 1981, he was invited to lead his first workshop in spiritual growth at George Washington University in Washington DC. The event was a success and led the group of sixty participants to experience real community. This workshop became a model from which Scott Peck studied and developed FCE’s Community Building Workshops (CBWs) in their four fundamental stages: “pseudo-community, chaos, emptiness and real community.”

The meeting which gave birth to the FCE took place in Knoxville, Tennessee, December 2-4, 1984. Scott and Lily Peck met with nine others who were also deeply moved by the need for community. This group became the first Board of Directors and one among them, Pat White, was appointed to be the Foundation’s first president. It was also decided that the FCE would be a national public non-profit educational foundation and that its office would be located in Knoxville. Over the first year, a group of twelve people was selected, offered training through a single Invitational Workshop and sent as leaders to conduct workshops throughout the country. The workshops were very successful and the foundation started to become well known. During the course of the years FCE’s board of directors carefully selected and trained leaders, sending them to conduct workshops around the country as well as internationally. For seventeen years, the FCE as well as its board of directors, workshop leaders and staff pursued the ideal of teaching community through programs such as Community Facilitation Program (CFP), Community-Building Workshops (CBWs), and Community Building Skills Seminars (CBSS). In 1988 the FCE established a branch office in Great Britain which, after three years of FCE consultation, became an independent organization called Community Building in Britain. Also in 1988 the FCE started doing consulting work with organizations, which became very successful but led to the loss of some of the FCE’s leaders who became independent consultants for other organizations.

Between the years of 1987 and 1991 many new FCE projects were developed or improved such as The Third Day Workshops, the Dots Exercise and The Blessings of the Bleu Dot. Because FCE's focus was on doing and teaching, the amount of consultation work to other organizations started to increase. FCE started to build community in auditoriums with bigger groups and to conduct workshops in foreign cultures with the aid of translators. After this big wave of growth, the foundation started to show its first signs of crisis: attendance at CBWs decreased significantly as did the participation of financial supporters. During the years of 1990 and 1991, recession forced the organization to reduce staff from 13 to 3. Also during this period, voluntary work was very important to maintaining the foundation's operations, and entire events were managed through voluntary efforts. This was also a crucial time for the leadership; it was decided that the board of directors would become rotational, with a maximum board member term of nine years. As a consequence of this decision and because of health issues, in 1993, with nine years of service, Scott Peck resigned from the board of directors, assuming the role of advisor. In his own words, "it was indelibly clear that FCE had grown way beyond me."

During the first semester of 2002, responding to the crisis and after reflecting on the mission and purpose of the FCE, the board of directors concluded that the foundation was no longer serving its purpose according to its established criteria and decided that FCE would end its activities. In July 2002, FCE organized The Foundation for Community Encouragement Final Gathering with the objectives of reflecting on FCE work and of planning for continuing communication among community builders. Community Crossroads was established as an informational web site maintained for the use of community builders around the world. Materials and resources from the FCE are made available to community builders through the web site <http://fce-community.org/>

Scope and Content

The collection documents the history, organization, mission and principles of The Foundation for Community Encouragement. It presents the FCE through the eyes of both Sister Ellen Stephen and Dr. M. Scott Peck. Sister Ellen, as FCE board member and workshop leader, personally participated in the creation of many of the documents presented here, and was responsible for collecting and preserving them. Dr. Peck as the founder, visionary, and advisor of the foundation, was also responsible for the creation of many of the documents.

The collection contains a series of publications – pamphlets, flyers, circulars - describing mission and vision of the FCE; articles related to the FCE; a large series of institutional and organizational documents and correspondence; written and recorded FCE history; reports of activities, with special mention for Community Building Workshops Leaders Reports; educational and training material for FCE's leaders and for workshop participants; and materials related to publicity and memorabilia.

Arrangement

The collection is organized into 6 series as follows:

Series I: Definition of the Foundation for Community Encouragement (Box 1);

This includes a history of the FCE entitled A Version of FCE's History, publications describing FCE's vision and mission, FCE's principles of community and documents related to FCE human resources management.

Series II: Policies and Organizational Matters (Box 2);

This series includes a large number of institutional papers including meetings reports and minutes, memoranda from and to the board of directors and other leaders, documents related to strategic planning, etc. The series is organized in folders labeled by year, in chronological order.

Series III: Community Building Programs (Boxes 3 - 5);

This series contains important documents related to community building events, including Community Building Workshops Leader's Reports written by director and leader Sister Ellen Stephen and her workshop leading partners. These reports offer an overview of community building events and their impact. Among those documents Sister Ellen also kept documentation related to the organization of each workshop, including public announcements, correspondence with sponsors, correspondence with co-leaders, participants' lists, etc.

Series IV: General Correspondence (Box 6);

This series contains letters, notes, and memoranda exchanged by FCE members, leaders and directors both among themselves and with the general public. The collection is organized in alphabetical order by sender's last name.

Series V: Publications (Box 7);

This is a collection of titles published by the FCE and its British counterpart, Community Building in Britain, organized chronologically. The folders are labeled with the publication's titles and bibliographical references.

Series VI: Awards and Memorabilia (Box 8).
